Training Program

UNDERSTANDING FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

No one can make business and investment decisions without a clear understanding of the business's financial position and business situation. And no one can fully understand the financial position and business situation of an enterprise without understanding the financial statements of the enterprise. Because understanding the financial statements of an enterprise is the shortest way to understand the financial position and business situation of the enterprise.

However, for those who do not have financial-accounting background, reading and understanding financial statements is not easy. And the majority of business leaders, shareholders, and investors are people without financial-accounting background.

So how can leaders, shareholders, and investors easily read and understand the financial statements of the business in a short time?

Understanding this, PACE School of Leadership & Management and PACE School of Finance & Accounting have collaborated to implement the training program "Understanding Financial Statements" for people without financial-accounting background.

TARGET PARTICIPANTS
